

The Chinese Association of Business and Intangible Assets Valuation (CABIAV) is one of the leading training institutions for performing valuation in Taiwan. The Association was established in 2003 with an aim to promote the development of the theory and practice of business and intangible asset valuation, and integrate with international valuation practices.

CABIAV has actively participated in and led the development of valuation standards in Taiwan. With the transition toward a more knowledge and service-based industry structure, the Association has trained and certified 577 business valuers and 36 intangible asset valuers as of December, 2020. Our members consist of a broad spectrum of professionals, academicians, government agencies, students and more. The Association consistently provides advanced courses to facilitate understanding of the current state of the art of valuation and its application to different domain fields.

As stated in its Constitution, CABIAV aims to: facilitate intangible asset financing; explore the evolving theory and best practices in the discipline of valuation; assist the development of valuation standards; hold professional training sessions and advanced courses; provide professional certifications of business and intangible asset valuers; and cooperate with relevant organizations around the world. To accomplish these objectives, the Association works progressively with the regulatory and the business communities to promote and enhance the valuation profession in Taiwan.
